Featured Artists

Quincie Hamby has been designing jewelry for more than 20 years. She's well-known for her striking color combinations made from natural stone, bone, wood, botanicals, gemstones, and pearls, and also her beautiful and practical designs. "My jewelry designs have evolved from a lifetime of travel and research. They're composed of objects that reflect the influence of my studies in Anthropology and Archaeology. My interest in cultural diversity and how certain cultures use vibrant colors to express themselves is engaging. I always find myself moving towards "found objects" that create a story. Whether it be a collection of lockets, or a flotilla of exotic shells, I love creating a visual dialog that a person can wear."

René Lynch is a watermedia artist who lives in Tallahassee, Florida. Extensive travel to tropical shores, including a yearlong sabbatical on the Garden Isle of Kauai, provides an endless array of subject matter. "Color, rhythm and value; these are the driving forces behind my work. I see lushness all around me, and I want to capture it, process it and throw it back out onto the surface. As I travel through the tropical landscape, I see colors so ripe that I can almost taste them, and I want to convey that sensation to those who view my work. Using water and earth-based media that mimic the organic qualities of my subject matter, I try to recreate the exuberance of our natural world."

Anne Hempel creates all her work on hand-crafted wood panels that her husband builds for her. She applies multiple layers of thickened acrylic paint creating an impasto style that reflects light and adds expressiveness to the painting. She uses glazes and washes in between layers to build rich color and highlight the texture. The wooden canvas makes the perfect surface for using a palette knife and various tools to carve into the wet paint creating a kind of three-dimensional sculptural rendering. "I'm fearless when it comes to experimenting with color and texture, my technique is always evolving. I live in a swampy, heavily wooded area with trails and boardwalks leading to endless natural vignettes that offer inspiration. Occasionally I like to hide a song lyric in a nest or embed a treasure found outdoors (a leaf, wing, feather, etc.) in a painting to capture my love for music and nature in my work."
